United Nations Global Compact 2008

The Communication on Progress (COP) is an essential component of the United Nations Global Compact. The Global Compact is structured around global sustainability in four key domains: Human Rights, Labour Rights, the Environment, and Anti-Corruption. The following principles, ten in all, have been adopted as guidelines for organizations which share the Global Compact's main objectives.

Human Rights

- Principle 1. Business should support and respect the protections of internationally proclaimed human rights.
- Principle 2. Business should make that they are not complicit in human rights abuses.

Labour Rights

- Principle 3. Business should uphold the freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining.
- Principle 4. Business should uphold the elimination of all forms of forced and compulsory labour.
- Principle 5. Business should uphold the effective abolition of child labour.
- Principle 6. Business should uphold the elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation.

The Environment

- Principle 7. Business should support a precautionary approach to environmental challenges
- Principle 8. Business should undertake initiatives to promote greater environmental responsibility.
- Principle 9. Business should encourage the development and diffusion of environmentally friendly technologies.

Anti-Corruption

- Principle 10. Business should work against corruption in all its forms, including extortion and bribery.
