Letter of Intent

The Bowden Group supports the ten principles of the Global Compact with respect to human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption.

With this communication, we express our intent to advance those principles within our sphere of influence. We are committed to making the Global Compact and its principles part of the strategy, culture and day-to-day operations of our company, and to engaging in collaborative projects which advance the broader development goals of the United Nations, particularly the Millennium Development Goals. The Bowden Group makes a clear statement of this commitment to our stakeholders and the general public.

We recognize that a key requirement for participation in the Global Compact is the annual submission of a Communication on Progress (COP) that describes our company's efforts to implement the ten principles. We support public accountability and transparency, and therefore commit to report on progress within two years of joining the Global Compact, and every year thereafter according to the Global Compact COP policy.

Yours faithfully,

Damien Burchell
General Manager

Company Overview

Bowden Printing was established in 1935 from humble beginnings by founder Frederick Bowden, who had no printing machinery of his own, but was motivated to provide for his family and to continue the legacy for future generations. For a period of time Frederick had to use sympathetic competitor's printing presses at night to produce his own work, but before long he was able to purchase his own equipment and his small business began to flourish.

Today, Bowden's is recognised as one of the leading print companies in South Australia. The company remains a family owned business and is run by an enthusiastic management team headed by fourth generation members of the Bowden family with an unshakeable belief in continuously improving and evolving the business to meet and exceed its clients' needs.

With the same enthusiastic vision for the future as its founder, Bowden's is a contemporary operation that embraces the latest industry technologies and innovations, but at the same time, never losing sight of the family values that formed the foundation of the company.

To us, the relationships we have with our clients, our desire to understand and know what is important to them, and our ability to play a meaningful role in growing their business is at the very core of our success.

Bowden's services range from standard business stationery to tailored print management solutions through to integrated marketing campaigns, it is that diverse!

Statement of support

Bowden Printing Pty Ltd as a company have shown that we have the character to back our commitments in all the areas of endeavour that we have been committed to; included are

- Marketplace
- Environment
- Workplace and
- Our communities.

We have by way of acknowledgement and support displayed our commitment to the principles of the Global Compact and we believe that as we move forward, implement and progress, our drive will be in the direction of reaching out to the entities and people we do business with. We foresee and expect they will in turn appreciate our efforts they will also abide by the principles of the Global Compact.

Our belief is that we cannot be an island all by ourselves and the special meaning we attach to the word “global”, as in Global Compact, is what will strengthen our resolve.

Activity Statement

The Bowden Group understands that the 10 principles of the Global Compact that define clearly a global culture that should be upheld by companies worldwide.

Implementing measures should not be seen by companies as an inhibitor to business but as an opportunity to better themselves to the peers; locally, nationally and globally.

We submit to the United Nations Global Compact a commitment over the next twelve months to implement clear recording processes across all 10 principles.

This method of better recording will allow us to move forward after 12 months with knowledge and supporting data that will allow us to implement continual improvement methodologies.

We have clearly identified processes in line with Global Compact recommendations that we will adopt.

Human Rights

Principle 1: Businesses should support and respect the protection of internationally proclaimed human rights; and

Principle 2: make sure that they are not complicit in human rights abuses.

Our understanding and support for the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights underline an important part of acknowledging commitment to social responsibility since 2009. We understand that our commitment entails that we work continuously to support and improve the worlds social performance by setting our own high objectives and integrating human rights considerations where necessary into our daily business.

We ensure that nobody whose work is contributing to our success is deprived of his or her human rights, or suffers mental or bodily harm.

We consider this as an unwritten Code of Conduct which is a non-negotiable requirement from within and entails that all our suppliers and their subcontractors, without exception, should adopt and follow this code.

Our Policy and Procedure Manual provides an objective guide to handle, solve, capture, analyse, and investigate compliance failures identified by employees.

We see it as our responsibility to help ensure that our suppliers act in accordance with our minimum requirements. The need for such a set of guidelines is due to the overall compliance we wish to attain within the industry. An unfortunate fact is that suppliers fail to ensure compliance with governing labour standards. The requirements in the Bowden Group Code of Conduct are therefore stricter in many areas than the general standard in comparison to similar businesses in our country. Clearly there may be structural conditions or cultural traditions that may give rise to non immediate compliance with the Bowden Group Code of Conduct. We consider the most important point is that suppliers are prepared to actively work to ensure they eventually comply with the requirements.

Our Code of Conduct expresses our support for the UN Declaration of Human Rights, and we also encourage our suppliers to sign up to the UN Global Compact.

Bowden Group provides access to basic health and education for the workers.

Social assessments are considered in certain circumstances if the employee can not afford the medical treatment.

If an employee is found to be not able to pay, the employee may be either granted or subsidised by way of a loan to attain the needed health care.

A programme designed for the consideration of human rights will be developed for our employees to better understand the involvement of Amnesty International in this area.

Considerations for action plans:

Leadership review of monitoring and improvement results

Dealing with incidents

Public legal cases regarding human rights

Use of independent external assurance of human rights programs

Labour

Principle 3: Businesses should uphold the freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining;

Principle 4: the elimination of all forms of forced and compulsory labour;

Principle 5: the effective abolition of child labour; and

Principle 6: the elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation.

All personnel – whatever the level/qualification – are entitled to join trade unions for the protection of individual and collective interests. Bowden Group acknowledge the role of union representatives, who are not subject to any discrimination, and ensure, for union activities, the appropriate retribution of absence and the means to communicate with personnel in the workplace.

Bowden Group stands committed not to resort to any form of forced and compulsory labour.

The Bowden Group is against the illegal use of child labour, exploitation of the work of children and all other unacceptable forms in the treatment of workers. Our policy is to identify where possible and not to work with suppliers and contractors whose labour practices are reproachable, such as the use of child labour, physical punishment, female abuse, and forced labour and other forms of abuse.

Bowden Group has the permanent concern to respect and promote the principle of non discrimination on all the levels of our Human Resources, with special emphasis on: recruitment, career development and training. With this intention, Bowden Group commits not to practice any form of discrimination, that it is founded on the age, the sex, the religion, origins (social and ethnic), political affiliation or trade-union membership.

The communication link between the Union and the worker's is never negated.

Bowden Group continually monitors as part of our management systems strategies to improve working conditions (including forced labour) within the printing industry. Our systems provide us with firsthand insight into factory conditions and serves as an important tool to measure factory progress against our standards. Monitoring not only helps us leverage our influence over competitors through face-to-face interaction, but also provides us with regular data about factory conditions and a mechanism to assess the impact of our efforts over time.

We will aim to ensure our suppliers comply with a Code of Conduct based on ILO (International Labour Organization) standards. At our request suppliers will be able to sign a code of conduct covering many areas related to the Global Compact. One such notable area is child labour. Suppliers are prohibited from using workers under the legal age of employment in any country or local jurisdiction where the supplier performs work for the Bowden Group. If the minimum age of employment is not defined, the minimum age of employment shall be governed by local, state and federal acts.

Bowden Group is Composed of managers from all facets of business: Senior Management, Sales and Marketing, Production, Financial and Human Resources. We have committees to look and understand Ethical Conduct which looks to ensure compliance with the company's Code of Conduct and human rights principles .

All of the current workplace agreements signed in the Bowden Group address occupational equality between men and women. Each employee has a contract of employment stating the terms and conditions of service. Each employee has a current job description.

The company funds by means of assessment any financing of programmes requested.

Annual research is conducted to establish benchmarking of wage rates for similar functions within the same industry. Bowden Group continually researches programmes that can be applied to staff within the company. Promoting knowledge, awareness, leadership skills, attitudinal changes, and the ability to balance work and personal life is a key culture of the company.

Environment

Principle 7: Businesses should support a precautionary approach to environmental challenges;

Principle 8: undertake initiatives to promote greater environmental responsibility; and

Principle 9: encourage the development and diffusion of environmentally friendly technologies.

Bowden Group recognises that all its activities have a potentially harmful impact on the environment. Bowden Group accepts social and moral responsibility for a continual improvement of our impact on the environment beyond the requirement of current legislation and other requirements we subscribe to.

We will make conscious decisions to ensure the environment is a key consideration in all activities undertaken by Bowden Group.

We will:

- Favour prevention of waste over reuse, before recycling and disposal to land fill.
- Strive to reduce pollution and minimise the environmental impacts and costs of our operations.
- Train and motivate our employees to understand their environmental responsibilities and participate actively in our environmental programmes.
- Regularly communicate our environmental performance to our shareholders, employees, customers and other interested parties and maintain an open dialogue with them.

To apply a common environmental management methodology throughout the company, Bowden Group have employed the use of external consultants to assess and approve "Minimum Environmental Requirements".

The requirements enable standardised practices throughout the company, regardless of their activity, the geographical area where they operate, and the applicable legal requirements. With these internal requirements, Bowden Group has moved ahead towards its goal of ISO certification.

Optimal product recycling begins in understanding the overall impact that arises from recycling issues. We evaluate the ecological effects of all processes over the whole life cycle of the product by means of a 'cradle to the grave' methodology and ECO Mapping. These results help the company employees choose and develop alternatives early on that offer the greatest ecological improvement over the whole life cycle of the product.

The ACE Committee, which consists of internal and external experts with environmental knowledge (executives in charge of environmental matters, and members from within the company) considers Bowden Group's environment-related operations, such as recycling and emissions trading, as well as the company's continual improvement in its manufacturing processes help to promote to show the greatest possible responsibility and concern for the environment.

We are doing our part for the environment by implementing "green" practices that help minimize the overall ecological footprint and contribute to more sustainable livelihoods by decreasing energy needs and increasing water conservation.

We are constantly challenged to improve the sustainability of the technologies, processes and materials employed in our operations and we can show examples of environmental impacts reduced by such initiatives. The recent review of all processes will identify improvements in the use of power and fuels and a packaging review will aim to define the environmental implications of materials and practices in packaging.

Considerations for action plans:

Leadership review of monitoring and improvement results

Dealing with incidents

Public legal cases regarding the environment

Use of independent external assurance of environmental programs

Anti-Corruption

Principle 10: Businesses should work against corruption in all its forms, including extortion and bribery.

Bowden Group will not condone any violation of the law, dishonesty or unethical business dealing by any employee, including any payment for, or other participation in, any illegal act such as bribery, fraud, theft, money-laundering or illicit dealing in goods or stolen property.

Employees or contractors who are concerned that laws, regulations, standards or the Code of conduct may be being breached, including safety-related issues, can raise concerns through our weekly staff meetings that are aimed at bringing issues to the forefront in an informal surrounding.

All reports are initially handled by a review process before being forwarded to the appropriate person within the Bowden Group.

Concerns are passed to a regional chapter of an industry based body who advises as required.

The Bowden Group will not tolerate retaliation against anyone who raises issues or is named. Any allegation of retaliation is investigated and, if substantiated, disciplinary action will be taken against those responsible
