

In the future we hope we can bring in more children. We also believe they can influence and inspire others more effectively than an adult on a wide range of issues that include child labor, environmentally friendly technologies and the elimination of discrimination on employment and occupation, not only by gender, race, age (old people) but also discrimination by social status, educational background (degree) or simply by being different or unstructured. And we also hope we can free more people from visible forced labor (due to extreme poverty) and invisible forced labor (due to the lack of courage to follow one's dream)

Picture me is also teaching and campaigning its core value of growth and progress by trusting others, sharing resources and knowledge as well as proactively taking actions towards all the important issues around us. We condemn bribery, corruption and extortion. We teach our children that those who do so will end up having a meaningless life.

Picture me also values common agreement to the extreme that most of the business guideline and structure are based on commonly agreed concensus among employess. The same is also applied to general classroom rules and regualtions. We teach the children to actively define their concensus among themselves and their teachers. We do not believe that value can be forced through regulations. We also do not believe in rigid structure, hence, we write this report as a story because we believe that in order to make people to be more excited to support the global compact and its principle is by making it exciting and relevant to their dreams.
