A good-standing global commitment to both innovation and measurable progress makes us a new leader in our community in the community. Investing in who we are remains central to efforts to promote a sustainable Communications on Progress (COP).

No matter how you look at market conditions of the past year simply put, our “Co-petition Strategy” is inextricably tied to our personal and professional interest in super-serving the as significant market power and to contribute to ideals of a sustainable communications without borders. This last quarter has been a turning point and a sizable shift in our global agenda -as our core network is now firmly rooted in the Cloud.

Additionally, our focus what other corporate citizens have failed to achieve gives us an enduring identity as being the cornerstone of an intensity which has driven us to a firm commitment to build a new business culture free of corruption (foreign and domestic).

In this Post MDG era our business remains anchored in those visions, missions and values which set our

This is our third Communication on Progress set before the United Nations Global Compact (UNGC), in the pass we've talked about our progress as if it was a task, goal or milestone which has already been achieve.

Here in this report we are not looking back to the past fiscal year to measure our progress; instead, we are looking at progress as a future event of which we can report today. In setting expectations of future progress we take one giant stride in targeting our achievements with a high degree of precision,

Historically, we have seen "success" as our most valuable commodity;
to this end, then "failure" is the price we had to pay. Where we did not lack passion and dedication: we lacked genuine human spirit.

Our people were deeply committed to supporting our goals and objectives demonstrated a tremendous degree of generous contributions of time, expertise and personal resources from a workforce ready to bring about the instant change which never came.. Change without good and proven stewardship is not "change"..it is a "Challenge ""

"WE NEED REAL PRO GRE SS"

- We are going back to addressing the issues of Environmental Impacts caused by technology.
- We are investing in Our People and progress
- We strive daily to support economic agenda which promote "Self-sufficiency "

"Making progress" toward an improved customer experience is always good enough ...unless that customer is someone you really care about -then you might begin to actually understand their needs.

Ten Challenging Facts in the next 10 Months!

Our progress will come through our advocacy for change, fair competition, consumer protection and regulatory power.

Based on our research we have identified the following achievable goals ...as benchmarks for against which we set our expectations.

CONCLUSION TO 2014 COMMUNICATIONS ON PROGRESS

This conclusion summarizes our 2014. COP Report- its purpose, process and findings. We needed to include your actual opinion here, to answer the several questions raised by your past and future progress based on our own expectations. We wanted to set expectations so there is a thematic unity to our report and any recommendations followed logically. We asked that you take into consideration the facts which may require you to also set reasonable limitations and, on average seek-out the underlying advantages of our facts and findings and any unresolved questions or issues. Avoid have avoided any sort of finger pointing even where mission-critical information was provided -including any relevant information relating to potential action(s). One adjective where may be useful in this conclusion is "Progressing" as a way of condensing our main point:

This report therefore clearly highlights that the future looks brighter. To this end, 2014 was very successful, year due to our inclusive and far-reaching impact with key target audiences such as CLOUD SERVICES, MVNO MARKET ENTRY and an on target agenda to roll-out a ubiquitous WiFi network.'
