SUSTAINABILITY IN THE HUMAN AGE

2013 MANPOWERGROUP SUSTAINABILITY REPORT

表語調室0

WE POWER THE WORLD OF WORK.

When our deep understanding of human potential is connected to the ambition of business, a dynamic power is created.

Power that drives organizations forward. Power that accelerates personal success. Power that builds more sustainable communities.

We generate this kind of power by connecting the visions of clients, the motivations of people, and what's now and what's next in the world of work.

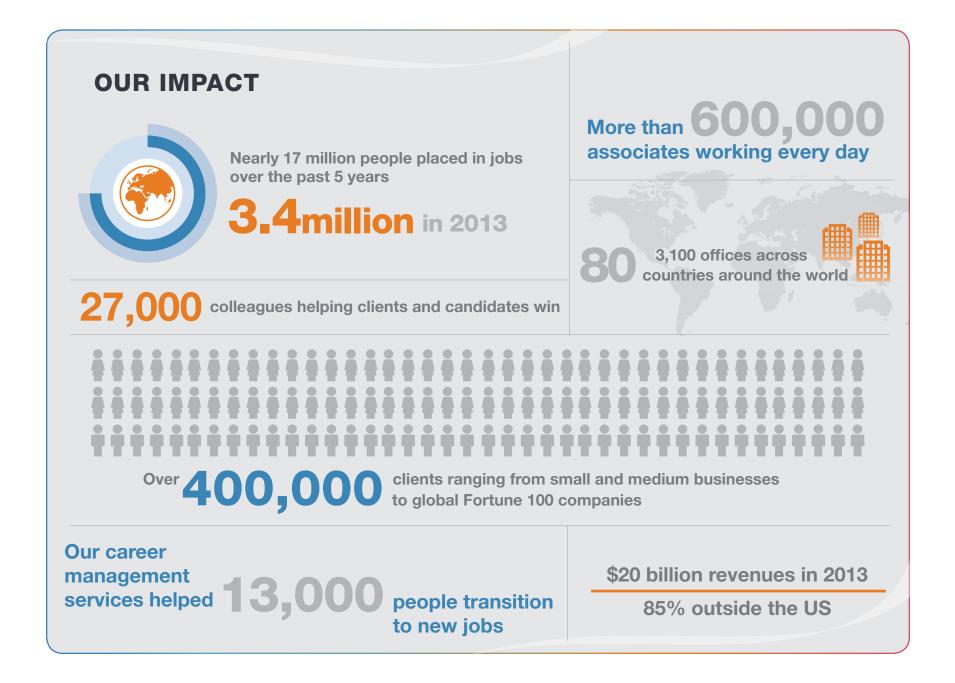

We combine local expertise with a global reach to give organizations around the world access to and the ability to capitalize on unseen opportunities.

As trusted advisors we nurture partnerships with everyone we work with, because their success leads to our success.

Because of this, we create high-impact solutions to enhance the competitiveness of the organizations and the individuals we serve, so that they achieve more than they imagined.

By creating these powerful connections, we help power the world of work.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGE

Our purpose is simple. We help people find jobs and build their careers while ensuring our clients have the workforce solutions and talent they need to win. We have always known that "doing well by doing good" is possible, and this duality of purpose is what fuels my personal passion for what we do. I know the same is true for ManpowerGroup colleagues across the globe. We take great pride in being part of a successful organization that makes a positive difference in millions of people's lives every year.

We live in a time of rapid change. Not a day goes by without major news coverage of labor market issues, whether it be youth unemployment, aging workforces, skills mismatches or income inequality. Pervasive talent shortages are impeding employers' ability to deliver value for their customers and reducing their competitiveness and productivity. Job-seekers are struggling to find the right employment opportunities.

ManpowerGroup has a profound understanding of these dynamic labor issues. This knowledge, coupled with our understanding of clients' needs to find the right skills at the right time, has allowed us to match millions of people to the right job opportunities. Helping people maintain their employability — providing them with the tools, opportunities and skills to develop their careers and increase the range of work-life choices they can make — is a powerful thing. It's what we do every day. Over the years we have provided training and development to more than 11 million job-seekers. In 2013 we placed 3.4 million people in jobs in 80 countries and territories, and helped nearly 13,000 people transition to new jobs through our career management and outplacement services. We connected more than a million young people with opportunities to develop work experience, through apprenticeships, internships, and temporary assignments.

That impact is broader still when we consider the time our colleagues spend volunteering in the community, and our engagement with industry associations and initiatives that raise awareness of challenges that individuals and employers face in the current labor market. My own engagement with organizations like Junior Achievement frequently fuel my passion to continue equipping young people with the tools they need to succeed in the world of work.

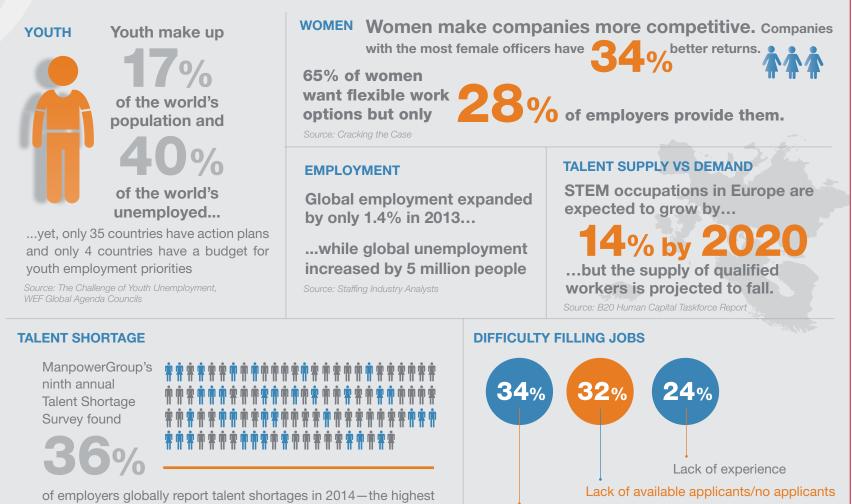

You can see the impact we have when 27,000 colleagues around the world share a common purpose. I am proud and honored to lead ManpowerGroup, and to have the opportunity to build on such a strong foundation. I thank all of our colleagues for their impressive work that contributes to sustainability in the Human Age.

SUSTAINABILITY: OUR VIEW IN THE HUMAN AGE

For 65 years, our purpose has been to power the world of work. We connect people with meaningful employment and employers with the best talent. As the world of work becomes increasingly complex, and talent becomes scarcer and more in-demand, our role in creating talent sustainability is ever more critical to enhancing the competitiveness of organizations and individuals. By unleashing potential, we foster sustainable workforces and thriving communities.

Operating in 80 countries and territories around the world, we understand that our business has economic, social and environmental impacts. We integrate responsible management into every aspect of our business, and diligently consider our impacts on all stakeholders.

SUSTAINABILITY OVERSIGHT AND MANAGEMENT

Our global vision and policies guide social responsibility and sustainability across our entire organization. Each country operation then takes responsibility for the development and implementation of local policies and practices that meet the laws, regulations, and culture of that country.

OUR STAKEHOLDERS

We regularly engage with stakeholders and seek feedback on their interests and concerns in a variety of ways, including individual conversations, interviews, meetings, surveys, involvement in industry associations, joint programs, and volunteer activities within our communities. In 2013, we developed a value proposition framework for our core stakeholders, to help us better align our reporting to their concerns.

ABOUT THIS REPORT

The ManpowerGroup Sustainability Report begins with an overview of who we are and our approach to sustainability. We then share key insights into our economic, social and environmental sustainability initiatives and successes in the areas that are of greatest significance to our core stakeholders.

This report serves as our Communication on Progress for the United Nations Global Compact, of which we have been an active member since 2006.

Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) guidelines were used as a framework in developing this report. Our intention is to evolve to reporting in accordance with GRI G4 guidelines.

Driving Superior Business Performance

WHY IT MATTERS / The more profitable we are, the more we are able to invest in growing our business and developing workforce solutions to serve more candidates and clients.

2013 was a year of planned simplification and recalibration. Our efforts helped streamline processes, reduce costs and make faster decisions—all while preserving our culture. Today our people are bringing solutions with faster speed to market, sparking innovation and efficiency, and developing inventive partnerships to help our clients win and our candidates succeed.

For instance, in the Netherlands, our colleagues successfully implemented our new Manpower delivery model that leverages centralized recruiting hubs and virtual recruiting, which was well-received by clients, candidates and colleagues alike. The team strategically consolidated branches, reduced costs by $9 million annually and increased website traffic to 2.6 million visits per year. And we also took the first steps towards introducing Google collaboration tools to our organization, which was a direct response to feedback from colleagues in our ManpowerGroup Annual People Survey. Using this cloud-based technology, we are poised to increase speed and agility across our company and connect our worldwide operations like never before.

Investing in Emerging Markets

WHY IT MATTERS / The greatest asset of emerging markets is their people. Building skilled workforces in these countries can lead to job opportunities, sustainable employment and broader economic growth.

In 2013, we grew our revenues in emerging markets by 3.8%. Key expansion markets included India, Brazil and Russia.

HELPING SMALL AND MEDIUM BUSINESSES IN EMERGING MARKETS COMPETE FOR TALENT

Small and medium enterprises (SMEs) play a key role in Mexico's economy—generating 52% of gross domestic product and 72% of employment in that country. However, SMEs are at a distinct disadvantage for attracting and retaining in-demand talent.

Recognizing the importance of fostering the growth and vitality of these businesses, Mexico's Ministry of Economy partnered with the local Manpower Foundation to provide free talent management seminars to more than 600 small and medium businesses in just three months. The seminars focused on identifying key skills, designing competency profiles, and creating tools for attracting and retaining talent.

Mexico's Manpower Foundation team was recognized with a ManpowerGroup Power Award, an award presented annually to individual employees and operations around the world that have achieved outstanding performance during the year. This specially commissioned piece of artwork, created by an internationally renowned artist, serves as a permanent reminder and celebration of our people's achievements.

Ethical & Principles-Based Culture

WHY IT MATTERS / Clients and candidates expect us to act ethically and responsibly to protect them from risk. Our colleagues expect us to live up to our values.

For 65 years ManpowerGroup has built a corporate culture of trust, integrity and accountability. Conducting business in an ethical and responsible manner is part of our company's DNA. A commitment to human rights, fair labor practices, and ethical business dealings is essential in our principles-based culture, and is recognized both inside and outside our company. Every year, as part of our ManpowerGroup Annual People Survey, we ask our colleagues for feedback on our ethical standards. The response is consistently positive:

- 89% HAVE HIGH AWARENESS OF OUR ETHICAL PRACTICE GUIDELINES
- 83% AGREE THAT WE CONDUCT OUR WORK WITH HIGH ETHICAL STANDARDS

In 2013, for the third consecutive year, ManpowerGroup was named one of the World's Most Ethical Companies. We continue to be the only company in our industry to achieve consistent recognition for our ethical and principles-based culture.

We were also recognized by Trust Across America as America's Most Trustworthy Company.

Code of Business Conduct and Ethics Training

WHY IT MATTERS / We expect our colleagues to maintain our culture of trust, integrity and accountability.

Our Code of Business Conduct and Ethics provides guidance to all of our colleagues and partners on the conduct of our business according to the highest ethical standards. We have grown and prospered with a culture of honesty, integrity, and accountability, and the Code contributes to our future success by helping to maintain this culture. The Code and our other ethics policies help to focus everyone on areas of ethical risk, offer guidance in recognizing and dealing with ethical issues, and provide mechanisms to report unethical conduct without fear of retaliation.

Each of our colleagues is expected to complete all required training and certification annually. Given normal employee turnover, we target a completion rate of at least 95%, which we consistently achieve.

MAKING IT EASIER TO DO THE RIGHT THING

In 2013, we increased awareness of our ethics reporting resources with an internal marketing campaign at our offices worldwide. The materials reminded colleagues how to seek advice and report concerns about ethical issues. They also promoted our improved Business Ethics Hotline, which now enables online reporting and can be accessed free of charge from anywhere in the world.

Helping Clients Win

WHY IT MATTERS / Employers create jobs. Our solutions help employers prosper and grow. We continually innovate to ensure that our brands drive value for clients.

Our client base is extremely broad and diverse, ranging from local small and medium enterprises to global Fortune 100 companies, and public and private organizations across every industry. Some clients partner with us in a single country; others leverage our global footprint. Many of our clients engage our services and solutions across multiple brands.

BRAND/OFFERING	HOW WE MEASURE	OUR GOAL	2013
Manpower	Satisfaction at market and client level	Continuous Improvement	varies by market
Experis	Net Promoter Scores	Continuous Improvement	10 point increase
ManpowerGroup Solutions RPO MSP	Market leadership position, based on independent assessments by Nelson Hall, Everest Group and Staffing Industry Analysts	Market Leadership	#1 #1
Right Management	Right Management Client Survey	Continuous Improvement	1% increase

We use a variety of approaches to measuring client satisfaction, both at the local market level as well as globally. For our most mature brand—Manpower—we measure client satisfaction at a market and client level. Experis and ManpowerGroup Solutions are newer brands/offereings, and we have global measures for those.

ABBA: THE MUSEUM TAKES A CHANCE ON MANPOWER

Before our client, ABBA: The Museum, could open its doors in 2013, they needed a partner to help them staff the entire museum. Without knowing how strong the demand from the general public would be, they wanted to plan the museum's workforce while retaining the flexibility to quickly expand if necessary.

Manpower Sweden strategically put together a pool of talent with engaging personalities and the necessary language skills, allowing for staff expansion during the busier summer months.

"ABBA: The Museum is like a stage, and we need our staff to create an experience for the visitors," said Mattias Hansson, the museum's chief executive officer. "Manpower found just the right people!"

Collaborating to Create Opportunities

DSM, ManpowerGroup and Technicom joined forces to find the right people to operate a newly built Spray Drying Facility at the DSM location in Delft, the Netherlands. Through combined skills and expertise we managed to recruit, train and coach a completely new and highly skilled team of process operators within two years.

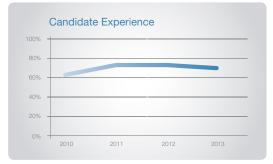

The recruitment and training phase started in 2012. With help of the new team of operators, the DSM Spray Drying Facility started operations in 2014.

Today, the team is fully operational, the individual members have all the skills they need and are performing at their best in the high performance environment of DSM.

The partnership between DSM, Manpower and Technicom is an excellent example of how we can collaborate to achieve great results, embrace one common goal, and thus create new opportunities for people with diverse competencies and backgrounds.

Candidate Experience

WHY IT MATTERS / Our success and that of our clients is dependent on attracting the best talent. We want to make sure that wherever candidates interact with us, they have a consistently positive experience.

In 2009, we launched our global Candidate Experience program. Candidate Experience defines the way that we engage with the people who come to us for help in connecting to employment. It's about making sure that wherever candidates interact with us, they will have a consistently positive experience where they feel welcomed, their needs and expectations are understood, and they are provided with honest and accurate direction. Since 2010, we have measured our success in delivering the Candidate Experience across our global organization, using both internal and external assessment tools.

Data from experience measurement activities is used to identify areas for improvement, and to check alignment between internal and external views of how well we deliver the Candidate Experience. Regional experts review results with country leaders, highlight trends, and help develop action plans to address the identified areas for improvement.

Our most recent Candidate Experience measures indicated that we have the highest scores from those candidates who came to us through online channels, which confirms that our investments in an enhanced digital experience are beginning to pay off.

CHANGING LIVES

Despite his in-demand skills and exemplary work experience, Brazilian IT professional Hugo Pereira was having great difficulty securing permits to work and live in Norway. The young father was desperate and facing deportation.

Confident in Hugo's potential and expertise, leaders from Experis IT and ManpowerGroup Norway came to Hugo's defense, convincing government officials to once again review his qualifications.

"When the phone call came that both permits had finally been granted, my girlfriend and I started screaming and crying," said Hugo. "This means an enormous difference for my family. I'm humbled by everyone at Experis and ManpowerGroup who stood up for me."

Supply Chain Integrity

WHY IT MATTERS / We need to ensure that we do not expose ourselves or our clients to operational or reputation risk from the actions of our suppliers. 22%

We engage a wide variety of suppliers around the world — from large, global technology providers to small, local goods and services providers, as well as local diversity suppliers and recruiters of specialized talent. We take a riskbased approach to addressing concerns that may arise from our supply chain.

We expect all suppliers to operate in accordance with our Supply Chain Business Partner Policy. Significant suppliers in each of our markets are requested to provide positive assurance of their adherence to our policy. Our largest global suppliers have key social responsibility principles embedded into their contracts.

We have a robust supplier diversity initiative through which local women- and minorityowned service providers are qualified, developed, and mentored to build their capabilities, accelerate their growth, and ensure they operate ethically and responsibly.

Making A Difference

Just two months after joining Manpower, I interviewed a Zimbabwean artisan named Blesswell. He was the beginning of my success here.

Blesswell walked into our Durban branch and made it clear he was desperate. He had a work visa, but was unhappy with his current position where he was expected to work long hours for very low wages. With a wife and three children to support, and feeling vulnerable as a foreigner, he didn't know where to turn. It was a heart-wrenching conversation. Even though I was new to recruiting, I knew I could make a difference in this man's life.

On impulse, I made a call to a new client—someone who had never worked with us—with a workshop that could benefit from Blesswell's skills. The manager heard the urgency of my call and agreed to meet with Blesswell immediately. I personally took Blesswell to the interview—which turned into an offer of a job paying four times what he was currently earning. He started the very next day.

Blesswell now has a permanent position there, with benefits, running the workshop operations. I've also placed three of his brothers—who are also well-trained and skilled artisans, and have seen a new flow of skilled, in-demand talent.

Who benefited more from this experience? I went above the call of duty to help Blesswell, but in the end it was he who "Bless(ed me) well."

Talent Planning

WHY IT MATTERS / As the world's workforce expert, we know that developing our people and ensuring a pipeline of talent is essential to sustaining our performance now and into the future.

Talent planning aligns our business goals with our talent strategy, and helps us understand the talent we have currently and determine how effectively we are developing the capabilities of our people. It's how we track and review the performance, potential and succession of all of our key leaders worldwide.

Our goal is for the majority of our leadership positions to be filled from within the organization. Of our global leadership team, 87% were promoted into their current roles.

To ensure a sustainable talent pipeline, we tap into multiple channels to find and secure talent. We have increased our efforts to fill key roles with high-performing and diverse candidates, and we are launching a global program to identify and accelerate the development of emerging leaders.

CEO SUCCESSION: TALENT SUSTAINABILITY IN PRACTICE

In our 65 year history, ManpowerGroup has only had three Chief Executive Officers: Elmer Winter, Mitchell Fromstein and Jeffrey Joerres. Most recently, during preparation of this report, Jonas Prising was promoted to the fourth CEO. We strongly believe that developing our leaders internally is a key to our success.

Having a strong succession pipeline does not happen by chance — it requires discipline and investment. Soon after joining ManpowerGroup, Jonas was identified as having the potential to become our CEO. Over the last 15 years he was given development opportunities to prepare for the role, including leading each of our brands, moving across regions and markets, and heading up global strategic projects. He was also mentored by his predecessors. This careful preparation produced the kind of leader that we've always developed at ManpowerGroup, one with deep industry knowledge, a client-first approach, strategic vision, and a passion for recognizing and cultivating human potential.

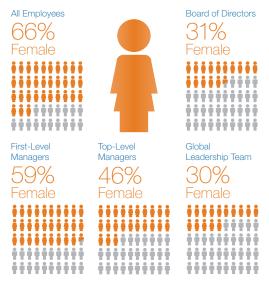

Diversity & Inclusion

WHY IT MATTERS / Diversity is an important part of our talent planning process. A diverse workforce allows our clients and candidates to see themselves reflected in our people, while bringing a broad range of perspectives and capabilities to our organization. Diversity of thought inspires the productivity, innovation and collaboration needed to be competitive in today's market.

Because we operate in 80 countries and territories around the world, our colleagues are naturally quite diverse. Although our company's world headquarters is in the United States, we work to make sure that our leadership reflects the diversity of our entire organization. While we do use foreign postings as development opportunities for our leaders, 85% of our country leaders are native to the countries they lead.

Women at ManpowerGroup

P.WERFUL connections

Monica Flores Barragan, Former Branch Manager, Leads Operations in 18 Countries

In Monica's Words

"One of the most exciting aspects of my job at ManpowerGroup and what made it different from my previous jobs was that 90% of employees were women. In fact, it was the first and only time I had a female boss."

"Throughout my career, I have seen women underestimate their capabilities. I made it my personal goal to do what's humanly possible to break down gender stereotypes, empower women, and help them recognize their talents and realize their potential—just as my mentor, Jonas Prising, did for me."

ManpowerGroup was one of the first employers to bring women into the workforce decades ago, and we remain a pioneer today, providing training, experience and employment for women across the globe. Women account for nearly 70% of our workforce, and more than 50% of our managers worldwide.

Our support for women in the workforce doesn't stop with our own company. Our strategic partnership with the World Economic Forum (WEF), and our participation in the WEF Global Agenda Council on Gender Parity, gives us an unparalleled platform to raise awareness about the critical role that women have to play in the world of work, and encourage closing the gender gap to ensure the continuing sustainability of the world's workforces and drive competitive advantages for businesses and economies.

In 2013, Mara Swan, ManpowerGroup Executive Vice President, Global Strategy and Talent, chaired a meeting of the Women Leaders Advisory Board at the WEF Annual Meeting in Davos, Switzerland. She also led a discussion at the launch of the WEF 2013 Global Gender Gap Report in New York City, where she shared how companies and countries can capitalize on their female talent pool, and how multinational and national companies can collaborate with governments on closing the economic gender gap.

"Attracting more high-performing women is imperative to any organization that wants to win, as unleashing the potential of all people is what will make businesses successful in the Human Age," said Swan.

Developing Great Talent

WHY IT MATTERS / We need to ensure that we are developing the capabilities of our people, to enable them to execute on our strategy and take on leadership roles throughout the organization.

ManpowerGroup's development philosophy emphasizes the shared nature of responsibility for individual development: Leadership must create an environment in which development is encouraged and supported, while individuals must seek out the exposure, experience and education that they need to reach their potential.

This philosophy underpins our approach to training and development: individuals create development plans in conjunction with their managers aligned to their specific career goals. Development plans typically include a range of activities such as participation in formal training programs, stretch assignments, coaching, and targeted learning in our online Global Training and Development Center.

Each of our markets has formal training and development programs for its employees. In addition, we have global development programs targeted to Leadership, Sales and Recruitment. PARTICIPATION IN FORMAL TRAINING PROGRAMS IN KEY MARKETS IN 2013

52% OF MANAGERS
 25% OF NON-MANAGERS

Below is a sampling of the global programs that were delivered in 2013.

Solution Selling training course launched in 2013, and taken by 900 sales professionals around the world. We also hold global sales forums on a quarterly basis led by our executives, and promote strong peer learning and collaboration.

Ampersand was designed and rolled out in 2013 to all global leaders, country leaders and their management teams. Designed to help leaders lead in today's complex world, where we must think in the "and" to solve problems and drive value, this workshopbased program brought leaders together from around the world and across brands to learn and collaborate around solutions. Unleashing Potential is one of our core leadership programs that strengthens leaders' ability to coach and develop their people to realize their full potential and achieve business results. We continue to embed this program further into the organization through targeted training topics such as "leadership success through coaching" as well as local manager development programs.

Engagement

WHY IT MATTERS / Having people who are engaged and believe they can make a difference is critical to our success. Engaged colleagues are motivated to achieve success for our clients and candidates, and act as ambassadors for our brand.

For nine years, we've taken the pulse of our people's engagement through our ManpowerGroup Annual People Survey. The survey is available to 100% of our employee population, and more than 80% participate each year. The results are shared across every level of the organization, and leaders are accountable for creating action plans to continually improve engagement.

WE MEASURE ENGAGEMENT ACROSS SIX PILLARS:

- 1. Job motivation
- 4. Employer advocacy
- 2. Pride in organization
- 5. Business /service advocacy
- 3. Pride in work
- 6. Job satisfaction

In 2013, 92% of respondents were fully or partially engaged.

Another measure we use to monitor the engagement of our people is intent to stay—a leading indicator predicting employee turnover. Most of our colleagues indicate that they intend to stay with ManpowerGroup for six months or more. Half expect to stay for at least three more years.

Our employee turnover has remained relatively low, and actually decreased slightly during 2013.

What Our Colleagues Tell Us

"Putting people to work every day personally brings me a lasting sense of pride."

"I am proud to be a part of this company and wake up every day trying to move our business to greater success."

"I am challenged and encouraged to grow personally and professionally. I am given the freedom and flexibility to approach opportunities with new ideas. I am constantly learning new things and improving my craft."

"This organization gives their employees chances to showcase their skills and talent. It also offers a lot of opportunities to their people to hone their skills, to master their craft and to reach their goals in life."

"It gives me the chance to help others to have jobs, to help them reach their goals in life. The satisfaction of seeing someone fulfill their dreams is priceless."

Investing in Employability

WHY IT MATTERS / Unemployment continues to be a global problem. Skills that adequately met vesterday's market needs are already dated today. While exploding youth populations have created a surplus of workers in some parts of the world, many of them lack the proper education and training to find meaningful work. Young people graduating from college may not have the work-relevant skills and experience necessary to gain employment. We need to bridge how educational institutions are preparing new graduates, and the actual needs of the job market.

A focus of our day-to-day work is connecting individuals to opportunities that allow them to gain valuable work experience and develop their skills. They don't all have specific barriers to employment, and they don't necessarily come to us through participation in formal programs. Whether through employability programs, flexible assignments, or permanent job placement, we focus on each person and their capabilities, and provide them with the right tools and opportunities to unleash their potential.

73.000 associates benefited from formal training programs to develop new capabilities, upgrade existing skills, or acquire the necessary qualifications to enter new fields.

Making New Career Paths Humanly Possible

When a leading regional insulation manufacturer decided to close one of its plants in eastern Finland, I was asked to help their employees make this life-changing transition. It was a particularly tough situation as many of the employees had been with the company for decades, and most had never applied for a job or written a CV. But I knew we could help get them prepared for new opportunities.

I work as an in-house consultant at the factory, in close cooperation with site managers and labor union personnel, and I have made it my mission to help the impacted employees improve their skills. The first crucial step was to gain the trust of the workforce. For me, the only way to do that was to serve them as best I can. That means delivering tailor-made career consultation services for individuals in a challenging situation.

I am certain that the services we're offering will have a positive long-term impact on the employees' lives. We often say that the world of work is "one size fits one," and right now this role fits me perfectly. I'm truly proud of being able to help these individuals, our client and my company. We make new careers humanly possible.

One of our critical focus areas is addressing youth unemployment. 80% of our markets have programs focused on helping to better prepare young people for employment.

More than a third of the associates and contractors in our key markets are young people under the age of 25, as compared with less than 15% of the general labor force in most countries.

We also partner with clients, governments and community organizations to develop and support employability programs for long-term unemployed, people with disabilities, and other disadvantaged groups. These programs may include coaching to help build confidence, training to develop in-demand skills and capabilities, and support to improve job search success. In 2013, we coached and trained 38,000 candidates from at-risk groups.

> LOCAL EMPLOYABILITY PROGRAM EXAMPLES

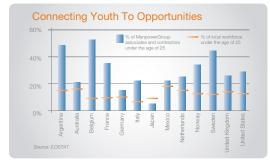

Enabling Small Enterprises to Support Apprenticeships

As the largest employer in the UK, small and medium enterprises (SMEs) present the largest potential opportunity for young people to gain work experience through apprenticeship programs. However, many SMEs are not able to meet the obligation of supporting a full-time apprentice for the legally mandated year.

In response to this challenge, ManpowerGroup in the UK developed an Apprentice Portfolio Program that allows SMEs to take on apprentices on a part-time or short-term basis. ManpowerGroup will then place the apprentice with other SMEs, enabling the individual to fulfill the 12-month apprenticeship requirement, while gaining experience with a variety of employers. We currently have more than 4,500 apprentices in our program throughout the UK.

> Partnering to Put People Back to Work

Across the United States, ManpowerGroup partners with local government and workforce development agencies to introduce programs that help put people back to work, especially underemployed or low income adults and the long-term unemployed.

In partnership with the Southwest Wisconsin Workforce Development Board, we trained 1,100 unemployed individuals, engaged 500 employers and placed 800 individuals into jobs.

With help from 200 employers and the Office of Economic and Workforce Development in San Francisco, California, we helped 160 city residents find jobs and trained 1,500 individuals.

The Just In Time Program in San Antonio, Texas, a partnership with Workforce Solutions Alamo, trains and places job seekers in the community into in-demand occupations. More than 100 low-income or underemployed adults, including veterans and dislocated workers, have participated in the program and gained full-time positions.

Supported by the Atlanta Workforce Innovation Grant, ManpowerGroup and five workforce boards are placing long-term unemployed individuals into partially subsidized work experiences to close a gap in their work history. This new program so far has trained 40 individuals, engaged 25 employers and put 15 people to work.

> Education to Put Job-Seekers on the Path to Employability

As part of its 2013 Workforce Employability Initiative, ManpowerGroup Hong Kong partnered with multiple organizations to educate jobseekers about the skills and capabilities needed by employers now and into the future. From August through October, ManpowerGroup Hong Kong participated in resume consultations and other educational programs and events with nonprofit and private groups like Junior Achievement, Jiu Jik, Hong Kong University and others. All told, the initiative connected thousands of job seekers to paths of career opportunity.

Addressing the Talent Mismatch

The ManpowerGroup France Foundation for Employment partnered with Pôle Emploi, the French Public Service for Employment, on an initiative called "Agissons pour l'Emploi" (Let's Commit for Employment). The program addresses the talent mismatch by hosting "job dating" events in Toulouse, Marseille, Rennes and Paris. The events connected 1,850 job seekers with 300 employers with open positions, while helping recruiters see beyond the CV to a candidate's potential.

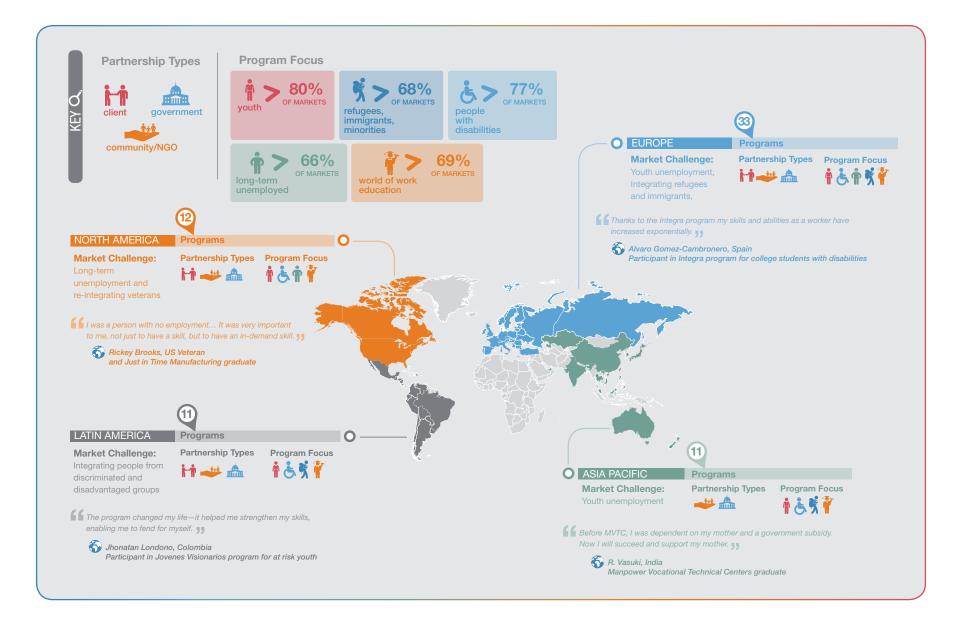

EDUCATING JOB SEEKERS IN HONG KONG ABOUT IN-DEMAND SKILLS AND CAPABILITIES

JOB DATING EVENTS IN FRANCE CONNECT YOUNG JOB SEEKERS WITH EMPLOYERS

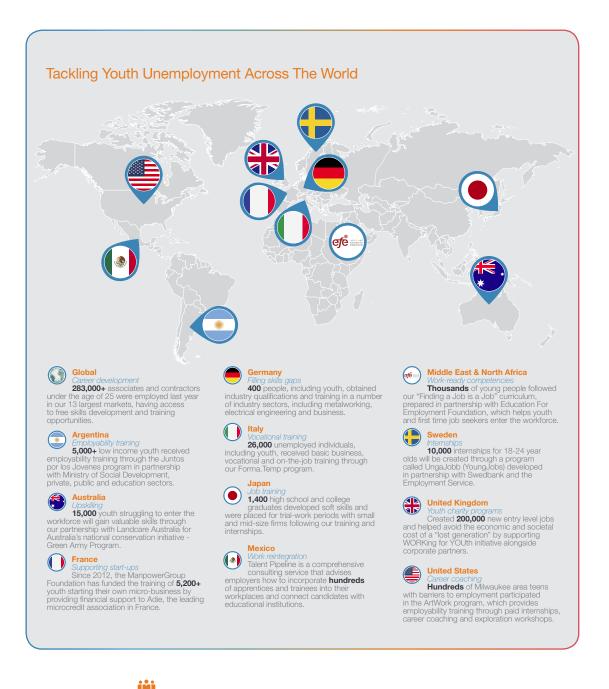

Creating 10,000 Internships

In Sweden, 27% of youth were unemployed in 2013. But thanks to UngaJobb (YoungJobs), they will now have more opportunities to develop work experience and become more employable.

UngaJobb got its start in 2009, and is the result of a partnership between Manpower, Swedbank, one of Sweden's largest banks, and the National Employment Service. Through our 60 local offices across Sweden we identify internship opportunities among our clients across a wide variety of industries and recruit the candidates from the local youth population. Potential interns are introduced to employers via "speed dating" interviews, and the National Employment Service handles the logistics of formal employment.

UngaJobb's vision is to contribute to a cultural change where young people have access to jobs through qualified and practical training experiences. Our goal is to create 10,000 new internships. To date, we have placed 4,000 young people in internships.

>Manpower Inclusive: A Winning Partnership For Diversity in Finland

In 2007, ManpowerGroup Finland launched Manpower Inclusive, a collaborative program that provides job opportunities for disadvantaged individuals — such as people with disabilities or chronic illness, immigrants, and youth, especially those who have been unemployed for more than one year.

"We wanted to create a bridge to employment by working in partnership with government, community organizations and businesses," said Mika Wilén, director of marketing and communications for ManpowerGroup Finland.

Manpower Inclusive leverages the expertise of partner organizations including Finland's Ministry of Employment and the Economy, The Finnish Neuromuscular Disorders Association, The Finnish Children and Youth Foundation, Fair Recruitment Campaign and Abbvie Oy.

By helping match candidates with opportunities, assisting with wage subsidies, and providing job coaching and other services, Manpower Inclusive has placed 400 people in jobs to date.

"These individuals now enjoy earning their own income and an improved quality of life, while their employers benefit from the skills of capable and motivated employees," added Mika. The program's success was recognized in June of 2013 by the European Commission with a CSR Award, which honors collaborative programs that tackle sustainability through innovation and partnerships.

Young Refugees Finding Their Futures
 Work is an important element for the successful integration of refugees into a new society.
 That's why ManpowerGroup in the Netherlands teamed up with the Dutch Refugee Council to create a program that helps prepare young refugees for a successful future in their new home. The program matches refugees between the ages of 15 and 18 with study and future career opportunities and includes workshops, internships, company and school visits, and social activities.

And the ManpowerGroup team is having some fun with the project, too. In June, nearly 40 women from across the company took part in the 10K LadiesRun in Rotterdam, raising nearly €11,000.

"Of course we are very happy with the funds raised," said Sylvia van der Graaf of the Dutch Council for Refugees, "but the real benefit is the design of the program that will have a significant impact on the future of these young refugees."

Job hunting is not easy. The economic crisis does not help, and it's no secret that it can be tough for a deaf person like me to get a job.

So it has been a great help for me that, without solicitation, an Experis recruiter offered to help me jump-start my career.

She did not spend her time finding just any job for me; she focused on finding a good company that does not see limitations but rather opportunities for a deaf employee to contribute to their business.

Note: We are happy to report that in March 2014, Niels obtained a permanent IT position with a very large Danish company doing what he loves most.

Manpower Changed My Life

In 2007, I was part of Jovenes Visionarios (Young Visionaries) in Medellin, Colombia. This program helped me to strengthen my skills and identify my weaknesses. The individual and group training, as well as the moral support, helped me—and others like me who had no one to rely on—to stand on our own feet. This is a great program and sets an example for other companies. As a Young Visionary, I'm proud, and I give many thanks to this company.

Community Investment and Engagement

WHY IT MATTERS / Our ability to understand and tap into the dynamics of our local communities is critical to the success of our business. Our visible engagement and support make for stronger, thriving communities where we live and work.

Sustainable communities attract the talent and businesses that fuel growth and profitability. Community investment also provides more opportunities for our colleagues to make a difference, increasing their engagement and our organizational performance. $7.3 MILLION DONATED TO COMMUNITY ORGANIZATIONS, (MONEY, GOODS & SERVICES, & TIME)

TEAMWORKS: SUPPORTING OUR COMMUNITIES

Helping to develop sustainable workforces is the goal of TeamWorks, our North America corporate volunteer program. By concentrating our combined efforts on one focus area, we are better able to make an immediate, community-wide impact. TeamWorks also increases appreciation for diversity, while boosting our ability to attract, develop and retain the best employees and candidates.

Each year, TeamWorks selects a small group of premier local and national non-profit and community organization partners that share our goal of building successful workforces. Colleagues at world headquarters in Milwaukee participate in a variety of organized volunteer activities, while our people in the field are encouraged to connect with national partners locally or choose their own local organizations with which to partner.

Health, Safety & Wellness

WHY IT MATTERS / Because we care about people, we care about the health and safety of everyone as an integral part of our culture.

We endeavor to take appropriate measures to provide a safe working environment for all of our employees, associates, contractors and consultants. We focus on compliance with health and safety legislation within our own business operations and also apply this same standard as a matter of priority when reviewing whether to place associates, contractors and consultants in a client's work environment.

In 2013, we conducted an assessment of 13 of our largest operations to understand the approaches they were taking to ensure health and safety and promote wellness in their organizations and for the associates and contractors that we place with clients. Given the differences in local regulations, as well as the variety of industries and roles in which we place our associates and candidates, we expected that approaches would differ significantly around the world.

of operations have standard practices to assess the health & safety risk of clients' worksites and roles prior to placing associates & contractors on assignment.

of operations have formal employee wellness programs.

Examples include:

- Employee Assistance Programs
- Free health screenings & annual checkups
 Discounted fitness memberships
- On-site fitness classes & weight-loss
- support groups
- Healthy choice menus in cafeterias and
- corporate catering
- Weight-loss and/or fitness challenges
- Monetary incentives for preventive health screenings of operations provide health & safety training to employees, associates/ contractors or both. Training is provided to associates and contractors specific to the requirements of their roles and clients' work environments.

of operations have health & safety certification: These tend to be countries where a large volume of our clients are in industries that have more rigorous health & safety needs, like mining, logistics and construction.

NEW POLICY AND GLOBAL FRAMEWORK

While a certain amount of variability is acceptable—even necessary—when working across so many different geographies and markets, we want to ensure that all of our operations have practices in place that align, as much as possible, with our global priorities. To that end, we have refreshed our global Health, Safety and Wellness policy, and developed a comprehensive program that establishes high-level governance, guidelines and goals. We plan to roll out this program in 2015 as part of our new Global Sustainability Framework.

Wellness to Power the World of Work

At ManpowerGroup we believe in supporting people to become the person they want to be.

Two years ago ManpowerGroup offered me the HR professional role that I had dreamed of for a long time. I had doubts about how a demanding job would affect my general life satisfaction. But I soon realized that both professionally and as a working parent I had the full support of my manager, and our company culture supported my general well-being.

Now it is payback time! Recently I helped develop the Be Well Program, which includes everything from comprehensive occupational health, pension insurance and possibilities for remote work, to wellness training and fun sports activities like running and ice skating. There have also been a wide range of Be Well training sessions on stress management, ergonomics, nutrition, and more.

In my work, I help our people be strong and fit to meet our business challenges in the world of work.

Applying the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights

WHY IT MATTERS / People are core to our business. We have publicly committed to supporting our people by respecting internationally proclaimed human rights and fair labor practices, and to embedding these practices into our operations.

The United Nations Human Rights Council endorsed the Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights as an authoritative global standard for addressing adverse impacts on human rights linked to business activity.

In 2013, we benchmarked our performance against the Guiding Principles:

PRINCIPLE 16: POLICY COMMITMENT

Our Code of Business Conduct and Ethics serves as our moral compass, and outlines our shared responsibility to treat people with respect, dignity, courtesy and fairness.

PRINCIPLES 17-19: DUE DILIGENCE

We conducted a preliminary assessment of our largest markets to understand the state of their practices to ensure human rights at work. We also developed a more detailed Human Rights Impact Assessment tool that will be rolled out in 2014.

PRINCIPLES 20-21: TRACKING & COMMUNICATING PERFORMANCE

Our local organizations supported a number of initiatives, including Project Futures, FEVIMTRA, Fundacion Reintegra, and Human Trafficking Task Force of Greater Milwaukee.

PRINCIPLE 29: GRIEVANCE MECHANISMS

We increased awareness among our employees of our resources for seeking guidance and reporting concerns about ethical issues. In addition, we improved our Business Ethics Hotline to provide online reporting capabilities, as well as toll-free access from anywhere in the world.

IN ITALY, MANPOWER AND MANPOWER FORMAZIONE HAVE EARNED SA 8000 SOCIAL ACCOUNTABILITY CERTIFICATION FOR THEIR COMMITMENT TO PROTECT HUMAN RIGHTS.

ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY ACTIVITIES

AGISKTE T VALJA

Page 33 Manpower Sweden's new bike fleet—zero-emission business travel. ISO14001 / Our operations in Australia, Finland, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway and Sweden have obtained ISO14001 or equivalent certification for their environmental management systems.

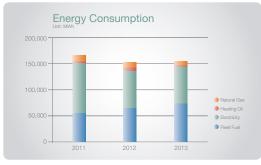

Environmental Management

WHY IT MATTERS / Even office-based businesses have an opportunity and responsibility to reduce their environmental impact—especially a business with offices in 80 countries and territories.

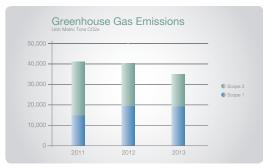

As a professional service organization, ManpowerGroup's operations are entirely office-based with an environmental impact that is relatively small compared to companies with more obvious carbon footprints, such as those in the manufacturing or transportation sectors. Our greatest areas of impact are from the energy we use in our offices and travel to deliver our services.

IMPROVING OUR ABILITY TO TRACK AND MEASURE PERFORMANCE

In 2012, we reported environmental performance in our three largest markets. In 2013, we continued to improve the quality and consistency of our environmental reporting, using raw data available from key operations and extrapolating performance across our global population. This enables us to establish a baseline against which to measure our performance and set goals going forward. Beginning in 2014, we will set high-level goals and priorities for our environmental performance at the global level. Our key markets will then identify local targets and objectives that contribute to meeting our global goals.

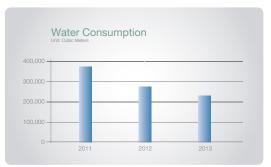

Detailed reporting on our environmental performance is available in the Performance Data table on page 35 and on our Ecodesk profile and CDP responses.

MAKING OUR OFFICES MORE RESOURCE EFFICIENT

Following the lead set by our global headquarters in Milwaukee, which moved to a LEED Gold certified building in 2007, our headquarters in France, Germany, Australia, and Austria are all located in environmentally certified buildings.

Other countries have taken steps to reduce energy consumption in their offices by making use of technology such as programmable lights and thermostats, as well as encouraging employees to power down computers and turn off lights.

Our water consumption is limited to domestic use for drinking and hygiene. We strive to use this resource responsibly and reduce consumption through the use of water conservation technologies where possible. GREENING OUR FLEETS / Our operations in Norway and Sweden have added electric cars to their fleets. And our colleagues in Sweden can now cycle to local meetings on one of several branded bicycles.

A number of initiatives to reduce paper use, such as programming printers to automatically print double-sided and moving to paperless transaction systems, have enabled us to substantially reduce the amount of office waste we produce. The majority of our office waste is recycled and does not end up in landfills. Most of our key markets have recycling programs in branch offices and standard practices to ensure the responsible disposal of electronic equipment.

GREENING OUR FLEETS

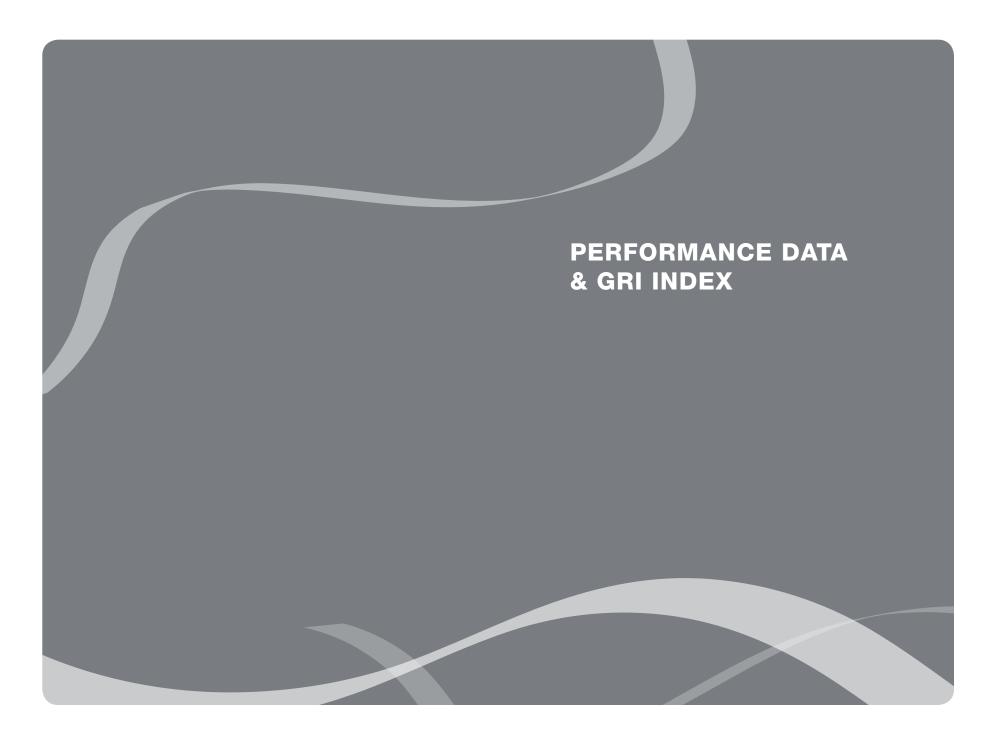

Fleet fuel accounts for almost half of our energy consumption. It's no surprise that our operations are looking at ways to increase the efficiency of their fleets, while at the same time reducing their emissions. For the past few years, our operations in Belgium, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and the UK have all been replacing fleet vehicles with lower-emission models. Nearly 80% of Italy's fleet runs on liquid natural gas. Norway and Sweden both have electric cars in their fleets. And our colleagues in Sweden can now cycle to local meetings on one of several bicycles branded with our logos.

I feel that the environment is important for me, but even more important for my children. I like using the bike because I like building strong legs instead of environmental footprints. After some weeks of taking the bike instead of the car, I realized that I felt better, saved some money and was helping a little bit for the environment.

The Talent Shortage Continues: How the Ever Changing Role of HR Can Bridge the Gap

Why is talent so elusive? HR leaders must play three distinct roles to ensure talent sustainability for their organizations – as supply and demand experts, as marketers and as designers.

A Technology Roadmap for Smarter Sourcing

HR professionals are challenged to identify sourcing technology that will connect them to the right talent quickly and effectively. The best sourcing technologies are agile—adapt to both the rapid changes in the talent marketplace and recruiting innovations—and attuned to client's business needs.

Why Financial Institutions Need a Workforce Strategy

The current economic environment of certain uncertainty, growing talent shortages and quickly-evolving workforce needs make it imperative to have a robust workforce strategy in place that accelerates execution of business strategy. This paper outlines talent management strategies HR functions can use to develop and maximize their employees' human potential.

Accelerating the Leadership Development of High Potentials

This joint Right Management and Conference Board report frames the conversation about how top companies select, develop and deploy leaders in Asia, where the shortage of leaders and pressure to develop leaders is greater than anywhere else.

Recruiting a Competitive Workforce: Should Needed Skills Be Built or Bought?

Globally, the working-age population is on the decline. At the same time, low-skilled workers exceed demand while highskilled workers are in short supply. For the foreseeable future, it appears there will continue to be more buyers (employers) than there is product to buy (talent). The companies that come out on top will be the ones that learn when it's best to buy talent and when it's more effective to build it. And the answers may not be as obvious as they seem.

The Great Talent Shortage Awakening: Actions to Take for a Sustainable Workforce

In the world of 2013, the only certainty is uncertainty. Changing demographics, technological evolution and a world prone to political, economic and social shocks have created a global environment in which talent shortages are the rule rather than the exception. As business cycles have become compressed, so too have skills cycles.

The People Side of Strategy

Talent has long been a critical differentiator for organizations, fueling a race for the best and brightest individuals that has been raging for nearly half a century. Even today, with high levels of global unemployment, competition among employers to attract skilled workers has never been more fierce.

Make Global Recruiting a Winning Strategy

Today's global workforce is on the move like never before. Macro-economic forces, including globalization and technological revolutions, provide individuals even more choices of how, where and when they want to work. While this is great news for talented job seekers, it is increasingly challenging for many employers who are discovering that finding the right talent where and when they need it most is not an easy task.

Leading in the Human Age

Companies today must prepare for one certainty—uncertainty. Specifically, companies will need to challenge themselves to create profiles for highly resilient and strategic Human Age leaders who can, in turn, build and leverage collaborative organizations. Businesses able to successfully navigate the Human Age and control their destiny are outpacing former competitors, swept along by the forces driving and shaping this era.
