Letter from the Chairman

Dear Readers,

It is my pleasure to present the Communication on Engagement Report prepared according to the UN Global Compact guidelines, which covers our activities in the field of human and labour rights, environmental protection and the fight against corruption for 2015-2017.

I am pleased to reaffirm the Republican Committee of Trade Union of Azerbaijan Water Economy workers' commitment to the UN Global Compact and its principles in the areas of Human Rights, Labour, Environment and Anti-Corruption. For us, sustainability means building our business strategy for the long term by balancing social considerations in the decisions we make. In line with our firm belief in this philosophy, we signed UN Global Compact in 2012. Back then whether trade union sector should take on such an important role in issues apart from the social sphere was a controversial subject that was gradually making its way onto the globalagenda.

The requirements of the Global Compact initiative provide a solid framework for corporate social responsibility (CSR). We are confident that by using this globally recognised framework for reporting our policies, activities and results, we will be able to further systematise our efforts.

At Republican Committee, we know how important it is that we play a positive role in the communities we serve and that we meet. Our organization is committed to high standards of ethics, quality and fairness and is dedicated to meeting its environmental and social responsibilities.

As a member of UNGC, we seek out ways to directly contribute to the sustainability of our partners, our country, and the world. We believe that two upcoming events in the period immediately ahead are going to be fundamental to humanity's ability to ensure a sustainable future in a livable world.

In this document we signpost our most up-to-date disclosures on our policies and performance on the important issues enshrined in the UN Global Compact Principles. The Republican Committee remains committed to making progress on each of these areas, for the benefit of our members, partners and wider society. We will continue to be committed to support the Global Compact initiative and its principles, by issuing an annual publication on our work with CSR, the Communication on Engagement.

United Nations Global Compact

In 2000, at the UN summit in New York, the world's leaders unanimously took a landmark decision to seriously address the widening inequalities between the rich and the poor. It resulted in the famous Millennium Development Goals (MDG) – including reducing poverty by half, ensuring education for all children and equal rights for men and women by the year 2015. The corporate sector was recognized as an important partner whose contribution to the goals of the MDGs would be crucial. We have since come far and the UN have started discussions on the post 2015 world development agenda and are formulating Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) underpinned by reducing inequality, promoting human right, ensuring sustainability and expanding MDG 7 on environment for which the role of the private sector would still be indispensable.

Secretary-General of the UN, Mr. Kofi Annan, who spoke to world economic leaders at the World Economic Forum, 1999 inviting and urging them to collaborate with UN agencies to support global efforts for sustainable developments. Following this appeal, the UN Global Compact was officially launched in 2000 as a principle-based framework for businesses, stating ten principles in the areas of human rights, labour, the environment and anti-corruption. The 10 Global Compact Principles spell out how companies can incorporate Labour Standards, Human Rights, Environment and Anti-corruption as an integrated part of their corporate culture or way of doing business. Since then the UN Global Compact has become the world's largest corporate citizenship and private sector sustainability initiative with more than over 10,000 business participants and other stakeholders from over 145 countries around the world.

Never before in history has there been a greater alignment between the objectives of the international community and those of the business world. Common goals, such as building markets, combating corruption, safeguarding the environment and ensuring social inclusion, have resulted in unprecedented partnerships and openness between business, governments, civil society, labour and the United Nations.

The UN Global Compact is not a regulatory instrument, but rather a voluntary initiative that relies on public accountability, transparency and disclosure to complement regulation and to provide a space for innovation. As a leadership initiative endorsed by chief executives, it seeks to align business operations and strategies everywhere with ten universally accepted principles in the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. Through a wide spectrum of specialised work streams, management tools, resources, and topical programmes, the UN Global Compact aims to advance two objectives:

- Mainstream its 10 principles in business activities around the world
- Catalyse actions in support of broader UN goals, including the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). In now Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

By doing so, business, as the primary agent driving globalization, can help ensure that markets, commerce, technology and finance advance in ways that benefit economies and societies everywhere and contribute to a more sustainable and inclusive global economy.

Network Azerbaijan

Azerbaijan's strongest corporate citizenship movement committed to the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. To engage the UN Global Compact signatories in Azerbaijan through local events and the fostering of a strong, supportive network of like-minded businesses. The GC process was introduced in Azerbaijan in 2006 and the national chapter of GC was officially launched in November 2011 with the joining of private enterprises and not-for-profit organizations who had expressed their commitment to the principles of GC. Presently, there are 20 members of Global Compact Local Network (GCLN) in Azerbaijan, representing business sector, civil society, and the academic community. The local network provides a leadership platform and a forum for members to learn from each other through joint problem solving and the sharing of knowledge, experience and expertise.

The primary aim of the GCNA is to offer practical help to Azerbaijan UN Global Compact signatories to integrate and operationalise the Ten Principles of the UN Global Compact within their business practices and strategy and to support broader UN goals. This is achieved through providing a national and international platform for dialogue, learning and influence that is inclusive, practical and leading edge. Through its activities, the GCNA facilitates and coordinates learning, development and knowledge exchange, provides a meeting point where organizations, no matter how large or small, can build best practice around corporate social responsibility and citizenship, and builds relationships and partnerships across the region and globe with a range of stakeholders to advance sustainable business models and markets.
