Awareness of responsibility to future generations, understanding the importance of the influence of today's decisions on the ecological situation, social relations and the future economy are at the core of the principles of sustainable development.

To date, more than a dozen companies, including non-governmental organizations in Kazakhstan, have joined the initiative to integrate the principles of the UN Global Compact. We also joined this initiative. Partnership, respect, honesty, meritocracy, perfection - these are the principles that each of us must follow.

Mail is an important element of the country's economy, ensuring its integration with the world, as well as development and integration within the regions of the country. Improving the quality and reliability of postal and financial services, expanding the range of services through distance channels, assisting in the maintenance of employment, improving the social, economic and environmental development of the regions - these are the goals we see as the basis for further sustainable development of the Company.

In 2017, we joined the Women's Empowerment Principles (WEP). More than 20 thousand employees work in our company, of which 76% are women. Therefore, we wholeheartedly support the policy of gender equality and non-discrimination. Equal treatment of men and women is not only the right step, but also a serious need for business.

Our company is a great force! Together we can solve important tasks, support key state initiatives, contribute to the development and prosperity of the Kazakh society. For example, Kazpost annually delivers school textbooks to the beginning of the academic year, and also conducts various charitable events, including for children. In recent years, our company has paid special attention to establishing an open dialogue with customers and all interested parties. The company has a hotline, management conducts meetings with business representatives to better understand their requirements.

In our company, Sustainable development is when the company works at all levels, in all directions, in a qualitative way. That's when customers come for new services recommend our company to their close ones and friends.

Kazpost has big plans for the future - this implies both new opportunities and new threats. But we know that we have all the prerequisites for achieving high standards in key processes in the field of sustainable development. To this end, we will concentrate our efforts in such areas of development as: digitalization and high technologies, superiority of quality, development of new relations with the client.
