Tofuture Oy, COP 17 July 2018

During past few years sustainability is becoming an integral part of the companies' operations and at the same time also international standards and their implementation are constantly developing. European Union Directive for non-financial and diversity information requires the biggest companies to report extra-financial information starting from financial year 2017. Additionally various local and/or country specific rules and regulations increase the demand for sustainability management and reporting. It can be said that corporate sustainability related topics and their economic implications are better understood and more valued compared to previous years. It seems that companies are starting to see the implication of their own actions on society and environment. In addition, consumers are getting more involved and demand actions from companies' side to sustainability issues.

The six principles of PRI for responsible investment and the ten principles of UNGC - including Human Rights, Labour, Environment and Anti-Corruption - are generally accepted and therefore Tofuture is committed to follow these principles. Tofuture Oy joined the UN Global Compact in 2010 and since then the 10 principles that Global Compact is based upon, has been integrated into our company culture and policy. In addition, the principles are defining the base for our professional services. For a small software company committing to these principles means taking good care of our employees and to protect their rights and well-being. In our own operations we focus especially on energy efficiency in our offices, efficient processes and business travel. The greater impact to the global sustainability is created through our services. Therefore, we focus both on our internal responsibility, and on external impact that we are able to generate with our CSM SaaS software services supporting the ten principles.
