

UN GLOBAL COMPACT
COMMUNICATION ON PROGRESS
2018

CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S STATEMENT

Alfagates became a signatory to the UN Global Compact in 2010 and we are pleased to submit our sixth Communication on Progress.

Operations

Our markets are improving. The middle east business focused on Iraq is showing a degree of normalisation, and critical infrastructure projects are being triggered. International players are engaging, and Iraq is engaging with the international market place in a noticeably more transparent way. The new government appears to be more international-business friendly.

Opportunities are re-commencing in Syria. These are early days, but our business base still survives from 2011 when we committed to the country.

Our renewables interests continue to develop and the market remains attractive, along with being a large, growing and so far sustainable employer, underpinned by multiple financiers. As I have mentioned in previous reports, this market sector offers nations, not rich in fossil fuels, the opportunity to be the global gamechangers, by the very virtue of not already having the burden of an existing infrastructure legacy reliant on fossil fuels. We act as catalysts for local and regional solutions reliant on working in harmony with the environment.

Our relationship with OSG <http://osgcompanies.com> continues to deepen. A resource sharing arrangement has extended our reach into Somaliland, a functioning de facto independent state, but whose sovereignty is unrecognised by the international community. Somaliland faces many not dissimilar challenges to those which Kurdistan still confronts. However, opportunities for the fisheries sector in Somaliland exist along its 850km of coastline, whereas Kurdistan is landlocked. We have deployed personnel to help OSG establish commercial routes forward.

Corruption

It remains critically important for the international community (including signatories to the UNGC), the United Nations, grant and aid providers, and multinational corporations to address corruption. Corruption raises barriers to entry to new geographic regions and market sectors, decreases the propensity of SMEs to enter what are normally fragile markets, and increases the working capital required to develop new markets. This inhibits or rules out altogether the adoption of the Ten Principles of the UN Global Compact, whether wholesale by existing signatories, or piecemeal by non-signatories which, nonetheless, will only operate if they can do so entirely ethically.

The Ten Principles and the Compact

We are specifically delighted that the ten principles and our modus operandi continue to fit together symbiotically and naturally. Above all, the UN Global Compact is a platform which we use to achieve common standards and empathy with, and therefore a mutual understanding between, all stakeholders and ourselves.

I pay tribute to our local staff and trading partners who have had to work sometimes in extreme conditions. As ever, I salute them all.

We hereby renew our support for, and commitment to, the Ten Principles and the Compact.

HUMAN RIGHTS

Assessment, policy and goals

Our assessment is that all people are to be treated as one would like to be treated oneself. This applies especially within the complex and broad ethnic environments in which we work.

Our policy remains to disseminate information and educate, whilst remaining as far as possible independent, apolitical, and disinterested.

Our goal in the year 2019 is to continue to extend our methods to our new territories and types of business.

Implementation

We continue to apply the “two report” principle concerning any potential violations or complaints. One report from each of a local and a non-local will be sent to the line manager and the Human Resources Manager. In any case when we deem that the line manager does not have sufficient experience to handle this situation, the report is passed directly to a team led by the CEO for resolution.

We encourage staff, and third parties unconnected with Alfagates, to try to obtain cross border access whether it is for holiday or work. We keep in contact with former members of staff and will act as a sounding board to assist them develop their careers.

Our current staff receive help for family needs outside their contracts of employment. We show empathy with all local cultures, for example granting time off for family gatherings, offering financial assistance for overseas medical trips, and pastoral care especially in international matters such as immigration, and international career opportunities outside Alfagates. We include part time and home workers amongst our team, which broadens the potential work pool.

We encourage skills such as IT and language and will make cash or equipment available for educational purposes.

Measurement

We have neither had reports of Human Rights violations, nor discovered any problems, nor been fined, nor been threatened with legal action or sanctions.

We uncover information through extensive discussion within our staff at all levels. The CEO and senior managers engage one-to-one with all branch management staff face to face in the relevant branch. Senior managers visit our staffed branches on a frequent basis and any problems are resolved on the spot.

LABOUR

Assessment, policy and goals

We assess the greatest values accrue to us by employing based on merit, and as far as possible on locality, introducing non-locals only where necessary.

Our policy is that at least one member of staff may step into a colleague's job at short notice and perform his role on a temporary basis from day 1 at a minimum of 65% efficiency. This encourages diversity and skill transfer, and fosters a society of merit-based leadership.

Our goal in the year 2019 is to extend our methods to our new territories and types of business.

Implementation

We have employed and will continue to employ, disabled people, women (including during and after pregnancy, granting maternal leave beyond the statutory minimum), and all persons whose skills and locality merit employment fitting our requirements.

Local general managers at each branch recommend solutions to such issues as discipline, pay review, bonus, benefits and time off other than pre-arranged holidays. The CEO takes great heed of these recommendations, mainly because managers visit and assimilate with all branch staff, and local customs and requirements, and are thereby more easily able to infuse their ideas and standards into the local labour market whilst maximising empathy.

All staff are expected to be curious and to learn skills from other staff. All staff are expected to train other staff in their own skills.

Productivity per person, by almost any measure, is increasing.

Measurement

We have neither had reports of Labour violations, nor discovered any problems, nor been fined, nor been threatened with legal action or sanctions.

ENVIRONMENT

Assessment, policy and goals

Our host governments are increasingly aware of at least the moral obligations to ensure that environmental considerations are a component of their strategies. However, budgets in all but aid economy-dominated countries have been constrained in many instances and the limited available funds diverted to other ministries.

Our policy is to ensure that we contribute the most within our resources to improve the situation. This involves basic housekeeping, staff education programmes, meetings with Government officials and close liaison with project financiers.

Our goal in the year 2019 is to extend our methods to our new territories and types of business.

Implementation

We focus on servicing our clients' needs in order to retain them, but we comply with all local laws and we work together with all our responsible clients and suppliers to ensure that international standards are met as closely as possible within practical commercial constraints.

Measurement

We have neither had reports of Environment violations, nor discovered any problems, nor been fined, nor been threatened with legal action or sanctions.

We make daily walk-through inspections and hold discussions to minimise waste or accidents and spillages such as may cause environmental problems. These inspections involve interacting with our field staff, our facilities, our clients and our suppliers.

Incident report forms log errors and omissions, and track the rectifying action to compliance with at least the local legal standard and to our own high standards.

Larger international clients, ethical financiers and donor organisations provide a constant source of external audit.

ANTI-CORRUPTION

Assessment, policy and goals

All our senior managers know all of our staff with an ability to make procurement and client service decisions, so this acts as a simple, effective control.

Our policy is that we do not permit corrupt practices. This is an immediate termination offence for staff; if we discovered that our suppliers were engaged in such practices we would seek to remove them; and we reject all offers of business which we suspect or know would support corruption.

Our goal in the year 2019 is to extend our methods to our new territories and types of business.

Implementation

All our managers with a procurement ability watch over each other at all levels. The Chief Executive has direct oversight and is involved in constant discussions, education and oversight at head office and branch level. This is a core platform of our leadership.

Our staff are bonded to Alfagates in the knowledge that the business, and therefore their jobs, exist through Alfagates' reputation for undoubted probity. This is proving a most effective method of ensuring that corruption does not even become a temptation and is demonstrating that we can self-regulate from within the organisation.

The staff bonus incentive scheme established in 2014 remains effective. The qualifications for payout include the pre-requisite that an un-reported breach relating to corruption by one is a disqualifying event for all.

We offer unsolicited advice and guidance to our clients and expect the same in return in our attempts to create a virtuous circle of improvement.

Measurement

We have neither had reports of Corruption-related violations, nor discovered any problems, nor been fined, nor been threatened with legal action or sanctions.

We conduct a monthly audit of cash expended at branch and head office level. The Chief Finance Officer regularly visits the branch offices. We continue to handle less cash proportionally to electronic money.

In the close community society in which we generally operate, staff actively monitor each other's behaviour and spending habits to identify personal expenditure beyond the expected norm for that person.
