

H.E Ban Ki-Moon

UN secretary General

Headquarters New York

USA

Dear Sir,

Women constitute over 60% of the world population. Women engagement in the world's affairs remains invaluable significant for social transformation and development. Throughout the world, women, especially, in African are the main economic drivers in the home. While few supports their husband to keep a home, majority, in most cases become the source of livelihood for their homes and families.

In this critical situation of the COVID19 economic productive has be slowed, which has affected our members and the country as a whole Recognising this plain truth, Action on African women foundation Ghana (AAWF-GH),resolved to focus on helping women in African better position themselves so as to how to fight the virus and also take precautions. The organization has taken it upon itself to educate women on how to practice social distancing ,washing their hands with soap under running water ,and also abid by the rules and regulations made by the government on how to control and manage the disease .

Over the years therefore, AAWFG-GHANA, has been working very closely within women in Ghana in areas that further showcase their invaluable talents and empower them to continue doing what has been recorded in history as their strength. In these bad times of the COVID19 our organization has written a letter to partner with the first lady the Rebecca foundation to distribute food items and other safety equipment to fight the virus.

Action on African women foundation Ghana signed out to the 10 principles of the UN Global Compact in 2008, and we are determined to helping the Global community implement and advance these cherished principles with the view to advancing the cause of humanity.

In this communication on Engagement (COE), I report on our activities over the years in accordance with the UN GLOBAL COMPACT Terms of engagements.

I also present the foundation's outlook for the future, as we endeavour to peruse gender-base programmes, building closer relations with counterpart institutions and business community as we collectively aspire to promote the ten principles of the Global Compact on Human Right ,Anti-Corruption , labour, and Environment .

By this COE, the foundation wishes to reaffirm its commitment and support for the UN GLOBAL COMPACT and will continue to work in partnership with the UNITED NAT IONS towards the achievement of the collective goal

Isaac Kweku Otchere

Executive Director

Accra – Ghana, April 04, 2020