

Volunteer Awareness Program on "Sustainable Development Goals" Through Amusement

Background: In 2015, the United Nations (UN) addressed the problems of communities and identified the global problems for development under 17 goals within the "Sustainable Development Goals".

The UN member states are expected to take steps to achieve these goals in academic and applied fields each year in order to overcome these problems and achieve their goals until 2030.

In this respect, the willingness of individuals to voluntary participation in efforts towards development goals guarantees social participation, deepens solidarity, and strengthens ownership of social and economic development goals. The presence of our volunteer projects is allowed the volunteers to take part in activity of the organization.

Objectives: The purpose of the voluntary projects of our organization is individuals participate in during their leisure time was to provide social benefits and to create voluntary recreational activities for the goals of acquiring intangible gains.

The role of voluntary recreational activities within the UN 2030 Sustainable Development Goals was determined by revealing the importance and place of these activities in the context of these goals.

Impacts: Participatory mechanisms that facilitate people's engagement and capacity to benefit other people and the planet. The SDGs cannot be achieved without people's engagement at all stages, and without new partnerships, including with volunteer groups.

Volunteer groups can be brokers of and provide spaces for engagement, connecting institutional initiatives with volunteer action at community level. Volunteering transforms the volunteers as well as the people they work with. Volunteer can raise awareness or champion changes and inspire others, to facilitate durable changes in mindsets and behaviors.

Volunteer groups can also play a significant role by brokering engagement and connecting governmental strategies and initiatives with complementary, yet essential, community voluntary action.

Impact of Volunteer Engagement help to co-creation of value with our organization through the recruitment of new volunteers and the development of new ideas for service innovation. The lives of all will be profoundly improved and our world will be transformed for the better.
