Ogbomosho, Nigeria: In a remarkable celebration of United Nations Day, Olusola Babarinde, the National UN Educationist for Nigeria, organized an enlightening Edu Torch Program for secondary school students in Ogbomosho. This event, powered by the dedicated God's Kingdom Campaigners of Nigeria, aimed to foster educational growth and awareness among the youth.

Diverse Participation:

The event witnessed enthusiastic participation from secondary school students hailing from public, private, and community schools in the region. Their collective dedication and eagerness to learn left a lasting impression on this momentous occasion.

Awards and Recognition:

In recognition of their commitment and efforts, participants were honored with medals and certificates. These awards serve as a testament to their hard work and dedication to education, echoing the values and ideals of the United Nations.

Educational Empowerment:

The Edu Torch Program, spearheaded by Olusola Babarinde, showcased the importance of education in shaping the future. It served as a platform for students to gain knowledge and skills, enabling them to contribute positively to society and the world at large.

United Nations Day: October 24 marks United Nations Day, a date when the global community comes together to celebrate the organization's mission and achievements. This event in Ogbomosho served as a local embodiment of the UN's commitment to education and empowerment.

This celebration in Ogbomosho reflects the spirit of unity and shared goals that the United Nations represents. The tireless efforts of Olusola Babarinde, the God's Kingdom

Campaigners, and the dedicated students who participated in this program have undoubtedly contributed to a brighter future for Ogbomosho and beyond.
