BIRTH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF WANGARI MUTA MAATHAI, THE NOBEL PEACE PRIZE 2004, FROM KENYA

Wangari Muta Maathai
The Nobel Peace Prize 2004

Born: 1 April 1940, Nyeri, Kenya

Residence at the time of the award: Kenya

Prize motivation: "For her contribution to sustainable development, democracy and peace"

Prize share: 1/1

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT,
DEMOCRACY AND PEACE

Wangari Maathai was the first African woman to receive the Nobel Peace Prize. She was also the first female scholar from East and Central Africa to take a doctorate (in biology), and the first female professor ever in her home country of Kenya. Maathai played an active part in the struggle for democracy in Kenya, and belonged to the opposition to Daniel arap Moi's regime.

In 1977 she started a grass-roots movement aimed at countering the deforestation that was threatening the means of subsistence of the agricultural population. The campaign encouraged women to plant trees in their local environments and to think ecologically. The so-called Green Belt Movement spread to other African countries, and contributed to the planting of over thirty million trees.

Maathai's mobilisation of African women was not limited in its vision to work for sustainable development; she saw tree-planting in a broader perspective which included democracy, women's rights, and international solidarity. In the words of the Nobel Committee: "She thinks globally and acts locally."

Mr. S. Subash Srinivasan, Special Sub Inspector of Police, Economic offences wing, Ramanathapuram district; The National UN Volunteer - India

Recently, the Shramal Archery Team from Ramanathapuram had the privilege of visiting the Sacred Garden established by Mr. Srinivasan. Under the guidance of Coach Suresh Ruban, the team learned about the importance of environmental conservation and sustainability. They were encouraged to actively participate in initiatives such as removing plastic waste and planting saplings around the pond area.

This collaborative effort between law enforcement, sports teams, and environmental advocates showcases the power of community engagement and collective action. Through education and hands-on involvement, these individuals are not only raising awareness about environmental issues but also taking concrete steps towards creating a greener and cleaner future for generations to come.

Subash Srinivasan: A khaki-clad green hero, a 47-year-old special sub-inspector from Ramanathapuram, Tamil Nadu, has been silently championing the cause of our environment for over a decade. His unwavering commitment to preserving trees and nurturing the green cover is nothing short of inspiring.

The Nailing Problem

Subash's journey began when he noticed the extensive nailing of advertisements to trees. These seemingly innocuous pins were, in fact, detrimental to the very lifeblood of these ancient beings. Trees, our silent oxygen factories, were suffering silently. Armed with determination, Subash took matters into his own hands.

He cared and cured 700 old tree at Pottan Puli, near Rameshwaram

In the heart of Ramanathapuram, a beacon of hope and greenery was kindled at Andrew's Girls HSS by the dedicated efforts of Mr. S. Subash Srinivasan, a figure of authority and a steward of the environment. His role as the Special Sub Inspector of Police for the Economic Offences Wing is marked not only by his commitment to justice but also by his passion for nurturing the seeds of environmental consciousness in young minds.

Under the azure sky, the school's grounds became a classroom without walls, where the whispers of the wind carried the message of conservation and the rustling leaves penned a symphony of sustainability. Mr. Srinivasan, with words as nurturing as the rains, instilled in the children the profound significance of nature in our lives. His voice, firm yet gentle, urged them to become guardians of the Earth, to cherish and protect it as one would a precious heirloom.

The national flag, a symbol of our unity and pride, was distributed alongside the Manchapai, a cloth bag that embodies the spirit of change—one that holds the power to gently push aside the plastic bags that have long harmed our planet. This simple act of exchange represented a larger trade-off, one where convenience makes way for conscience, and short-term ease bows to long-term sustainability.

Gratitude was the undercurrent of the day, as Mr. Srinivasan extended heartfelt thanks to the Headmistress, the teachers, and the management of Andrew's Girls HSS. Their support and cooperation were the pillars that upheld this noble initiative, proving that when it comes to safeguarding our planet, every hand joined in unity strengthens the resolve.

Today, the students of Andrew's Girls HSS stand a little taller, their spirits infused with the knowledge that they are the change-makers of tomorrow. They carry with them not just the flag of their nation but the flag of environmental stewardship, ready to lead the march towards a greener, more sustainable future.
